Fine Art Series

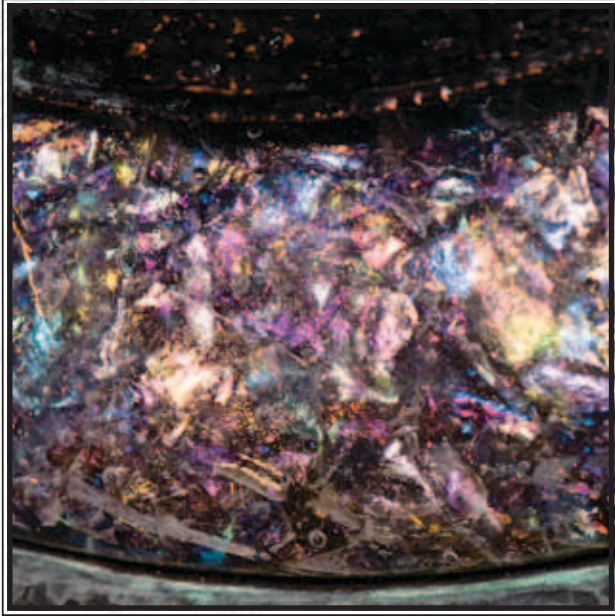

Circular Obsessions is my fine art series of sculptural works in bronze, glass and other media. It gained national exposure in Sculptural Pursuit magazine, with a full feature in the Fall 2009 edition.

This series enabled me to exhibit the use of glass in new and creative ways. My approach to sculpture is very design oriented. A cohesive and aesthetically pleasing look is a principle driving factor.

I use materials in new ways to achieve a unique look with visual gravity. My goal is for the work to be visually compelling, holding attention as a viewer is pulled deeper into the detail.

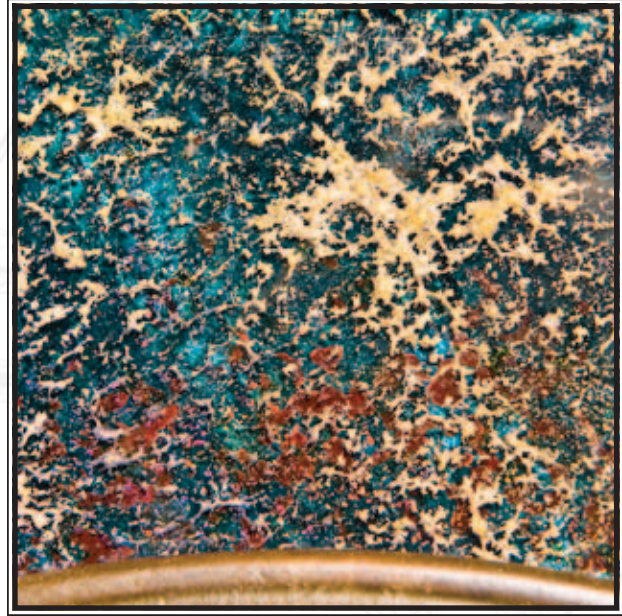

My goal is to attract the viewer, and pull them deeper into the detail.

My glass design process requires that the results embody a jewel-like quality. I draw inspiration from cut and polished stone agates. It is the naturally occurring flow of color, texture, and pattern in infinite detail that I'm drawn to.

The glass elements must fit into the larger context of a sculpture where they serve to enhance and complete the whole. In a strong design process each element must stand on its own terms, and when combined something much grander is revealed.

The complete Circular Obsessions sculpture series can be viewed at my web site.
