

Meet A.C. ("Acie") Doyle, former fashion model and now professor of English Literature. She has a problem--her mother, Jay Watson, who fancies herself an amateur sleuth. Acie's mom and her Aunt Sherry Holms drag Acie and Ike Adler, a fellow professor, into an investigation into the death of a friend.

The victim, Charlie Baron, promised his land to Acie and her friends as a wildlife sanctuary, but his niece (and heir) has other ideas. When the niece dies in mysterious circumstances, suspicion falls on Acie and on Ike.

Then another complication tosses Acie's life into a deeper tangle. She's persuaded to come out of retirement and work on a fashion shoot on the campus.

But the "shoot" turns into a real "shoot" and Acie may lose not only a chance for the love of a lifetime--she may lose her life.
